Asia LEDS Partnership Secretariat hosted by ICLEI South Asia has recently launched a Community of Practice (CoP) on Multi-Level Climate Governance. As part of the CoP activities, ALP propose to organize a facilitated online session on the topic, 'Integrating Climate Action Planning with National Level Ambitions: Key Learning from Southeast Asia and India' with an objective to share key discoveries and learning on "how vertical integration of climate action planning in practical takes place".

The webinar chooses to focus on examples from South and Southeast Asia, through presentation and discussion by the core teams working on Ambitious City Promises (ACP) in Indonesia, Philippines, and Vietnam in cooperation with Seoul Metropolitan Government from South Korea and CAPACities Project in four leading cities India, i.e. Rajkot, Udaipur, Siliguri and Coimbatore.

The ACP initiative, funded by the German Ministry for Environment (BMU) through its International Climate Initiative (IKI), will share insights of successful community engagement model for developing effective and ambitious climate action plans by establishing inclusive low emission urban economies. Similarly, the CAPACities project brings in the ClimateResilientCITIES Action Plan (CRCAP) methodology. It is tailor made for Local Governments (LGs), providing step by step guidance for the development of a climate resilient city action plan. Each of these examples primarily addresses the national level commitment for climate change at a local level.
